Communication and action protocol for failed bacteriological results in drinking water for Alberta Environment approved waterworks systems

Discussion:

Providing clean water has become a challenge with new knowledge and information about emerging pathogens in source waters. Water treatment systems must be designed and operated to ensure microbiologically safe drinking water even under the worst possible raw water quality scenario. Effective particle removal and efficient disinfection are the two principal treatment measures for ensuring microbiologically safe drinking water. Turbidity and disinfection residual measurements are therefore, the two most important ongoing tests related to microbiological water quality. The testing for bacteria in drinking water is an important component for ensuring microbiologically safe drinking water. A positive coliform test or high plate counts may indicate a system failure requiring immediate action. This protocol is intended to ensure that test results that exceed the bacteriological criteria as described in the latest edition of the Guidelines for Canadian Drinking Water Quality are transmitted to the appropriate parties so that follow-up action can be taken immediately.

Information / Database

1. Alberta Environment (AENV) Data Base

   AENV will develop and maintain an electronic database to contain:

   i) a list of the regulated waterworks systems under its jurisdiction; the waterworks system operator / contact person and his/her telephone and fax numbers;

   ii) the AENV regional offices; each regional contact person and his / her telephone and fax numbers; and the 24 hour AENV complaint / emergency section telephone numbers;

   iii) the Regional Health Authority (RHA) offices; each regional contact person and his / her telephone and fax numbers; and the 24 hour emergency contact pager number if available; and

   iv) Alberta Health and Wellness regular work hours telephone numbers, and the Provincial Health Officer or the Deputy Provincial Health Officer 24 hour pager number.

   AENV will make this information available to the Alberta Public Health Laboratory (APHL) and the RHAs. AENV will also update this list, and notify PLPH and RHAs if a new waterworks system is approved.

   AENV database forms a part of this protocol.

2. Bacteriological Quality Database

   APHL, EPCOR, and the City of Calgary will independently maintain all analytical results for the tests carried out by them in an electronic database. This information will be made available to AENV, Alberta Health and Wellness, Health Canada and the RHAs as requested.

Compliance requirement for bacteriological quality

1. Sampling

Bacteriological samples should be collected from representative points after treatment and throughout the distribution system after the first service connection.

The owner/operator of the waterworks systems in consultation with the APHL will ensure that they have an adequate supply of sampling bottles to meet the bacteriologicalquality monitoring requirement in the Approval. The owner/operator of the waterworks systems will be responsible for completing the requisition form, attaching the identification sticker to each sample bottle, and collecting and shipping of the samples to reach APHL within 24 hours. In collecting the samples, care shall be taken to wash hands before sampling, remove tap screens, and disinfect outside of the tap with alcohol or bleach. All water samples shall be transported in coolers with ice packs (not loose ice) to preserve the quality of the samples. APHL will reject samples not received within this period.

Minimum frequency of sampling, to be evenly distributed in the sampling period, is based on the following table:

| Population Served | Number of Samples per Month |
|---|---|
| up to 5 000 | 4 |
| 5 000 to 90 000 | 1 per 1 000 population |
| more than 90 000 | 90 + (1 per 10 000 population) |

Additional sampling will be required if poor water quality is suspected or Maximum Acceptable Concentration (MAC) for bacteriological quality is exceeded. Less frequent sampling may be allowed based on site-specific conditions, at the discretion of the AENV Approvals Manager.

2. Analysis

Analysis for compliance monitoring is to be done at the government owned APHL. Exception to this requirement is the compliance monitoring for distribution system within the boundary of Cities of Edmonton and Calgary, where a minimum of 50 % of the compliance monitoring must be done at the APHL.

3. Maximum Acceptable Concentration (MAC)

The MAC for coliforms – both total and faecal – in drinking water is zero organisms detectable per 100 mL. Because coliforms are not uniformly distributed in water and are subject to considerable variation in enumeration, drinking water that fulfils the following conditions will be considered to be in compliance with the coliform MAC:

i) No sample should contain more than 10 total coliform organisms per 100 mL, none of which should be faecal coliforms;
ii) No consecutive sample from the same site should show the presence of coliform organisms; and

iii) For community drinking water distribution systems:
   (a) not more than one sample from a set of samples taken from the community on a given day should show the presence of coliform organisms; and
   (b) not more than 10% of the samples based on a minimum of 10 samples should show the presence of coliform organisms.

Notification for presence of microorganisms (initial and repeat samples)

If total or faecal coliform organisms are detected from a single sample; or if the sample contains either a heterotrophic plate count (HPC) of more than 500 colony forming units (cfu) per milliliter, or background colonies of more than 200 on a membrane filter, the following notification procedures apply:

1. APHL will fax a copy of the results on the same day the results are known to the:

   (i) owner/operator of the waterworks system where the sample was collected;
   (ii) regional office of the RHA where the waterworks system is located; and
   (iii) regional office of the AENV where the waterworks system is located.

2. Outside of regular work hours (between 3:30 p.m. and 8:00 am on week days and at all times during the weekends), in addition to the fax notification, APHL will also telephone the 24 hour complaint / emergency section of AENV, and the 24 hour emergency contact pager number of RHAs.

Note: AENV Database, appended to this protocol, contains all the contact names, and the telephone and fax numbers

Follow-up procedure and intervention

As soon as the fax or telephone notification is received by AENV, the Enforcement and Monitoring Section (E&M) of the Regional Office, in collaboration with the Regional Approvals Engineer and the RHA, will plan a strategy and take the following actions:

1. Corrective actions

The owner/operator will conduct a detailed check of the plant performance, disinfection dosages and residuals, the finished water quality (turbidity, particle counts, etc.), and any spill events or main breaks in the distribution system. AENV will verify that the owner / operator of the system:

i) optimizes the treatment process for surface water systems, if turbidity exceeds 0.5 NTU;
ii) increases disinfectant dosage and monitoring frequency for residual chlorine; and/or
iii) flushes water mains until chlorine residual is detected.

2. Repeat samples

AENV will verify that:

(i) the system owner/operator collects and submits for analysis a set of repeat samples, consisting of three repeat samples for every sample in which the presence of coliforms are detected; or the HPC is greater than 500 cfu/mL; or the background growth is greater than 200 colonies on a membrane filter. One sample from each of the following sites for a total of three repeat samples should be collected after localized flushing:

(a) at the site of previous sample; and
(b) within 5 active services upstream of the site of previous sample, or at the potable water reservoir for small systems; and
(c) within 5 active services downstream of the site of previous sample.

These samples shall be clearly identified as "Repeat Samples" on the requisition forms, which accompany samples to the laboratory.

(ii) all samples in a set of repeat samples are collected and submitted for analysis within twenty-four hours after notification by APHL. In the event the repeat sampling is conducted on a Thursday or Friday, the owner/operator would inform the APHL that weekend analysis is required, and advise AENV and RHAs accordingly. Shipping and pick-up of samples should be co-ordinated to ensure QA/QC is maintained. APHL will submit all results of repeat samples, both passed and failed, to AENV and RHAs, by faxing immediately to the respective offices.

(iii) when repeat samples have coliform detected; or contain a HPC of more than 500 cfu / mL, or background colonies of more than 200 on a membrane filter, one additional set of repeat samples for each of these incidents should be collected. Based on the magnitude and the extent of the problem, AENV may revise this procedure on a site-specific basis, but the sampling will be continued until the problem is resolved.

(iv) chlorine residual and turbidity (for surface waters only) are also monitored at each sampling site, and recorded.

Public health intervention

1. Boil water order

i) An executive officer of a RHA may issue an immediate boil water order if in his/her opinion a condition presents itself as a potential public health concern that requires immediate intervention to safeguard the public's health. Such conditions include but are not limited to:

a) structural or equipment malfunction or concerns exist within the water plant or distribution system;
b) one or a combination of physical, bacteriological or chemical analyses that in his opinion presents a public health concern;

c) exceedance of the health based turbidity limit for the water entering the distribution system; or

d) increase in number of cases of illnesses in the community.

ii) Notwithstanding the above, if the repeat samples taken under 2(i) contain faecal coliforms, then a boil water order is to be issued to the community served by the waterworks system.
If re-sampling confirms the presence of total coliforms in the absence of faecal coliforms, the degree of response will depend largely on the circumstance, magnitude and the extent of the problem. If the presence of total coliforms is linked to a main break, or the count is low (less than 10 organisms per 100 mL) and confined to a small area, then corrective actions as detailed earlier should be continued. If the total coliform count is high (greater than 10 organisms per 100 mL) and the problem is widespread, then a boil water order is to be issued.

iii) RHAs will ensure that boil water order notice is communicated to the consumers, especially to high risk facilities such as child care centres, long term care facilities, hospitals, hotels, ice manufacturers, etc.

iv) RHAs will notify officials of Alberta Health and Wellness (Environmental Health Strategies during regular work hours and the Provincial Health Officer or the Deputy Provincial Health Officer outside regular work hours) as soon as practical of any boil water notice carried out pursuant to this protocol.

Note: I) If there exists a Public Health Intervention Protocol for a particular waterworks system, or a new one developed, that is:

- endorsed by the RHA, AENV and the system owner;
- not in conflict with any of the procedures stipulated in this protocol; and
- more stringent than the procedures stipulated in this protocol, then RHAs may follow that protocol for public health intervention.

II) For large systems, serving greater than 20,000 people, at the discretion of RHAs, the boil water order may be confined only to those areas directly affected by the distribution network, and not necessarily the whole community served by the distribution system.

II) If a positive bacteriological sample can be distinguished as an internal building / complex problem, then, at the discretion of the RHAs, the boil water order may be confined to that building / complex.

2. Rescinding a boil water order

The boil water order will be rescinded when the regional health authority is satisfied that a risk to public health no longer exists. This may be determined according to the following criteria:

i) the treatment or distribution malfunction has been corrected and sufficient water displacement has occurred in the distribution system to eliminate any remaining contaminated water;

ii) turbidity, disinfection residual or particle counts of the treated water have returned to acceptable levels;

iii) at least two consecutive sets of samples collected in two consecutive days have no coliform; and the HPC is less than 500 cfu / mL, and background growth is less than 200 colonies on a membrane filter;
iv) any other actions or verifications deemed necessary to assure that public health is being protected.

Establishing the cause of contamination

E&M will co-ordinate the effort by the owner/operator of the system to determine the cause of the microbial contamination, and ensure that measures are put in place so that the incident will not be repeated. The owner/operator will follow up with a written report of the incident to AENV and RHAs within seven days of discovery of the problem.
